

After people had finished eating, the band stepped up the music from background level to full-on party mode and it wasn't long before the area in front of the clubhouse was full of dancers cavorting happily to sounds of the sixties, including The Hollies, Van Morrison and the Faces.

Halfway through the evening, The Commodore, Chris Jeckells, said a few words to thank the Gilberts and team of helpers for their efforts and welcome guests and members of the club.

The evening ended around 11.30pm when the band had completed their repertoire (including several encores) and the dancers had run out of energy!!!

Well done team Gilbert!
